"D-Day Plus 60" Tour In 398th Plans

Regardless of the current political differences between America and France, members of next year's "One Last look" tour can expect a warm and sincere welcome at the "D-Day Plus 60" celebrations on the beaches of Normandy.

"Each returning veteran will receive a special medallion as a token of esteem from our country," said Admiral Brac de la Perrier of the sponsoring Normandie Memorire 60 Anniversaire.

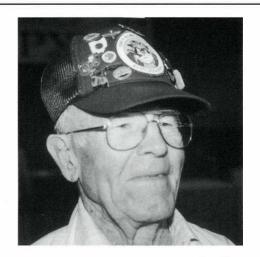

The 398th Bomb Group 2004 tour group, expected to number about 35, will spend three days at Villedieu les Poules (near Caen) on June 5-6-7, before moving on to England.

Meanwhile, there will be many activities on Normandy, and it is assumed that President Bush will be in attendance, along with some 60,000 others.

Because the 398th had a June 6, 1944 D-Day date at Courseulles-sur-Mer, (Juno Beach) the tour visitors will pay that city a special visit during the Normandy stay. A plaque depicting the 398th's participation will be presented to the Courseulles mayor by president Wally Blackwell.

Dates of the tour are June 3-15, 2004. After an initial "rest stop" at Portsmouth there will be three days in Normandy, followed by another two days in southern England before moving on to Cambridge, the old base at Nuthampstead, Anstey, Madingley, Duxford, Hertford

GEORGE HILLIARD

This is the face of one of the most beloved men in the 398th Bomb Group—George Hilliard—a 603 line chief back then, and the man most often credited with the creation of the current highly successful Association.

Hilliard was honored at the Covington Reunion with the reading of his "Little Engine That Could—And Did." He was awarded a plaque depicting the engine, the Wright Cyclone R-1820-97, for his wartime work plus his many years as the group's Contact Officer.

A Positive Turnout

The 20th annual 398th Bomb Group reunion at Covington, Kentucky on September 8-11, 2003 was supposed to give hint of "things to come" for the Association.

Would there be some assurance of ongoing enthusiasm among the members? Or would there be signs pointing toward an inevitable "winding down?"

Well, the registration count of 268 was hardly a sign of "calling it quits" and more consistent with the numbers of five of the last seven meetings. A positive turnout!

"We are delighted with 268," said reunion chairman Sharon Krause. "And were it not for a couple of dozen cancellations the last minute, mostly for health issues, we would have reached the 300 mark.

"The untimely passing of Jerry Monagin took away 14 members of his family," she added. "And Ralph Hall, who had never missed a reunion, had to cancel at the last moment for himself and family."

And there were others calling in with cancellations, each expressing disappointment at having to skip the Covington meeting.

But those who were there, some in precarious health, soundly applauded when president Wally Blackwell asked for a response to the question of next year. A hearty "YES"!

So "next year" can be recorded as "absolutely" for next September, 2004, in Falls Church, Virginia, near the "Beltway" of Washington DC.

The reunion at Covington, one of the growing and progressive cities in Northern Kentucky (across the Ohio River from Cincinnati) featured "Timeless Voices of Aviation."

This was introduced by Greg Anderson, executive vice-president of EAA Foundation, Oshkosh, Wisconsin. And skillfully managed by Randy Stange, one of our second generation sons and daughters, of which there were no less than 36 at the reunion.

Stange interviewed, on video camera, 27 men of the 398th, who related their respective careers in aviation, most of which had to do with their air combat careers in World War II. But not all, such as George Hilliard, the 603 line chief

From The President's Desk:

We Have Friends, And We're Grateful

By WALLY BLACKWELL President, 398th Bomb Group Memorial Association

In previous columns I have proudly reported on recent 398th accomplishments as a busy and still growing (in spirit) association. At this time I will try to comment on a much older but very important part of the 398th organizational fabric. It is time to say "thanks" to all the overseas Friends we have been so fortunate to acquire during the past 25 years or so.

We have more than one hundred of these very special people. They live in many different countries, places called Belgium, Czech Republic, England, Germany, Holland, Ireland, Poland, Sweden and Scotland. In most cases they have become our friends because they served as the vital link between our membership tour groups and the countries we were visiting. They made great efforts to introduce these old 398ers to the hospitality of their country. Very frequently they said "thank you for coming." It really is amazing how much success we have had making friends with those who don't speak the same way we do, or often in a tongue we cannot understand. I can not possibility imagine my life without not meeting these smiling and gracious souls along the way.

There are so many of our 398th members that experience the warm feeling of having a real friend from a far off country. We have stayed at their homes and often have been lucky enough to have been able to have them as a guest in our homes.

During two weeks this past July, the Blackwell's entertained Jaromir Kohout from the Czech Republic. It had been only a month before that Jaromir had been our host at the Air Stars meeting in Slany, CR. We were there to attend a memorial service that honored the 398th Christiansen crew that was lost there March 2, 1945. It was a once in a lifetime opportunity for Jaromir to spend endless joyful hours "researching" at the National Archives facility near Washington DC. What was he researching for? As much information possible about Allied aircraft lost over the Czech Republic during WWII. Jaromir left happily with about one hundred pounds of copy that he just knew was priceless information.

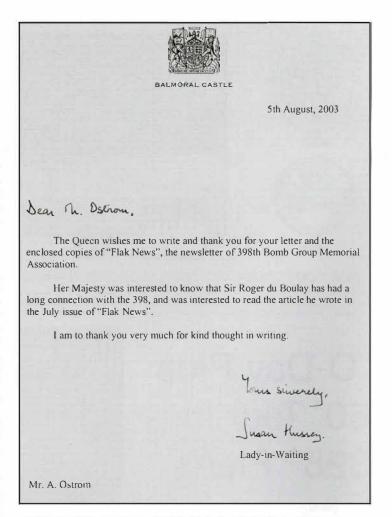

In September, I was pleased to go to Dulles Airport to meet Wilfrid Dimsdale, the leader of the UK Friends of the 398th. Wilfrid was great company for Teedy and me while driving from Maryland to our 398th Covington, KY reunion. I even let him drive a bit after he proved he could handle the right side of the road. It is so significant for all of us to realize that Wilfrid would take the time and make the effort to be with us for that brief but meaningful visit.

So we salute our Friends from the other side of the Atlantic at this time. They have names like: Tony, Gerald, Sonia, Geoffrey, Johanna, Jitka, Ladislav, Manfred, Jan, Roger, Ingemar and a hundred more like them that we proudly call, "Friends of the 398^{th} ."

Maria Hunter Passes

Maria Hunter, widow of 398th Bomb Group commanding officer Col. Frank P. Hunter, Jr., passed away last February, 2003. She was buried at Garysburg. NC. She had attended several reunions and a tour to England, which included a visit to Col. Hunter's grave at Ardennes, Belgium. She was 87.

NEXT REUNION IN "DC"

The memories of the Covington reunion have yet to be organized and the photos of friends, buddies and loved ones have yet to be placed in albums.

But already the plans for next year are in place.

The 2004 annual 398th Bomb Group reunion will be held in Falls Church, Virginia September 8-9-10-11, 2004.

The Fairview Park Marriott Hotel is located just off the Washington DC Beltway, within close proximity to Ronald Reagan and Dulles Airports. And a free shuttle to the Metro Station.

The hotel is in a guiet, office park location convenient to all Washington DC attractions, including the Smithsonian's new Udvar-Hazy center and literally hundreds of America's historical sites.

The 2004 September meeting dates in "DC" follow three months after the England/Normandy Tour. It promises to be a very busy year!

"Rocket Assist" In FLY PAST

It is called, "Express Delivery" in the September issue of FLY PAST, the prestigious British aviation magazine.

But it is a specially edited "Rocket Assist" B-17 story that appeared in the July, 2002 issue of FLAK NEWS. The same text and the same photos, but displayed in a sparkling, glossy, color format, courtesy FLY PAST editor Ken Ellis, who added, "our many thanks to the editor of this fine 398th journal, Allen Ostrom."

For information on purchasing the 112-page FLY PAST magazine, call Eastern News at 1-800-221-3148. In England, Call 020 7396 8000 (London).

The magazine, with a 45,000 monthly circulation, is available at most aviation museum book stores and wherever major magazines and books are sold.

whose ground and air service spanned 30 Air Force years.

The interviews will be edited by the EAA and made available to the Library of Congress, World Wide Web, libraries, publication and broadcast agencies. They will be used for scholarly and educational purposes.

Stange hopes to duplicate the tapes for 398th use, and will continue to interview others as time and space permits.

Hilliard, who gave up his 398th Contact Officer duties this year after being the group's "point man" since 1976, was warmly cheered as one gift after another was laid on him during the Farwell Banquet.

A smart, embroidered jacket was presented by Hal Weekley and his B-17 allies from the EAA. Then Blackwell opened a package containing a plaque with a B-17 engine and appropriate wording attesting to Hilliard's longtime service during WW II and the many years following as Contact Officer.

"I Want To Be With Those I Shared It With"

These duties will now be taken over by Sharon Krause, who also toils as the annual reunion chair and E-Mail manager.

Geoff Rice, who moved from England to Colorado this year (to marry up with 398th treasurer Marilyn Gibb) read Hilliard's story entitled, "The Little Engine That Could—And Did." And then Cate Ludlam followed with a poem telling about the life of an Air Force wife. And this was followed by Teedy Blackwell, who gave Elaine, George's wife of 60 years, a lovely floral bouquet. It was a tender and heart-warming time as the 200-plus banquet guests honored one of their most "beloved" members.

Dave Jordan provided a talk and slide program in explaining his role as the group's "Web Master." The marvels of this technology are actively creeping into the 398th lineage, witness the many members who have computers and E-mail addresses

Jordan, the son of a 600 pilot, has created a masterful web page for the whole world to see—www.398th.org. Jordan works in concert with Blackwell, Rice and historian Lee Anne Bradley in administering the 398th web site.

GREG ANDERSON (left), executive vice-president of the EAA Aviation Foundation, Oshkosh, WI, was the guest speaker at the Covington reunion. He came to promote the EAA's "Timeless Voices" project and found a willing participant in Randy Stange, who interviewed no less than 27 members. For his video interviewing prowess, Randy received a special B-17 sports shirt from Anderson and the EAA.

Lee Anne provided a brief sketch of the many stories that even now are being edited and prepared for use on the group's web site.

Friends of the 398th chairman Wilfrid Dimsdale "popped over" from England to tell of his committee's plans for the "One Last Look" tour to the old base next June.

"It may be called, "one Last Look," he said, "but we hope there will be many more in the years ahead."

Dimsdale spoke of the work going on at the Hertford Archives and Local Studies (HALS) in recording 398th history. The group is financially supporting the transcription of photos and documents to compact discs, which one day will be electronically available on www.398th.org.

Krause, kept busy all week at the Registration table, was also alert to seeing that everyone got on the proper coaches for tours to the Wright-Patterson Air Force Museum, Lexington Horse Park, two local city tours and an historic tour to Lebanon, Ohio.

It was a busy schedule, but folks still found time to congregate in the Memory Room to buy from Joe & Rozanne Joseph's well-stock PX tables and to browse through "Jack's Books" and other bits and pieces of 398th memorabilia.

As Harry Overbaugh was heard to say, "my tie with the 398th was the greatest event in my life and I want to be with those I shared it with."

"D-Day And Beyond"

The Long March... And Freedom

BY HERBERT G. COOPER

As we marched out of Stalag Luft IV on February 6, 1945, we did not know where we were headed except that we would be heading westward away from the advancing Russian Army. We had been in the camp since June, 1944.

Everyone tried to devise some kind of pack to carry food and some extra clothing. I used a little cardboard Red Cross suitcase that I received in Frankfort and an extra shirt using the sleeves for shoulder straps. Making a suitable pack, not comfortable, but durable.

The first day we walked 24 kilometers (about 15 miles). As it turns out, we generally made from 15 to 25 kilometers per day. We would stay in farmers' barns at night in an area where several farms were close together, anywhere from 200 to 300 packed into a barn.

The weather was fairly cold and raining or snowing much of the time. Fortunately we had regular army overcoats and field jackets to keep warm, but our feet were generally wet by evening. I only had two pairs of socks, so each evening before going to sleep I put the wet pair in my overcoat pockets, letting body heat dry them until the next evening when I made the switch again.

We had no chance to wash or shave except maybe to wash our face and hands once in a while at a farmer's well. Food was very scarce because the Red Cross could not get parcels to us very often. Generally, they would have a wagon load of boiled potatoes in the evening. We would get one or two potatoes and sometimes 1/4 of a loaf of black bread. And occasionally, some corned beef. We called the German rations "Jerry rations." When we did get Red Cross rations, Curt and I would save the cigarettes and bar of soap for trading. Generally, those who didn't smoke would immediately offer a pack or half a pack for some bread or a little meat to civilians as we passed through a small village or even a farm.

We would wait a couple of days until inflationary prices were down and we could trade three or four cigarettes to a housewife for a loaf of bread, some meat or some stew. We also cut soap bars in half; women would eagerly trade for this. With this procedure we were able to keep up and endure. Although we were hungry much of the time.

We could occasionally hear big guns far to the east. After about a week, we were going to pass through the German lines, probably reserves. We were warned that anyone falling out would be shot. We started through a forest; it was raining and by evening there was no place to stop. We continued walking until many could no longer keep up. About 1:00 AM the guards found a clearing with some brush piles scattered around. Curt and I put a blanket on a brush pile. Covered up with the other and went to sleep in the continuing drizzle. We had not eaten since morning and were too tired to care at this time.

The next morning we moved on but were so tired we were virtually walking in our sleep. This was our ninth day on the road. On this day we were ferried across the Oder River. Food was very scarce. One evening we stopped at a farm to sleep in the barn, but we had no food. The officers in charge bought a cow from the farmer. It was killed and dressed out and divided among over 20 P.O.W.s We each received a piece of meat.

On the same night a single bomber hit a barn about a mile down the road. Several P.O.W.s were killed or injured. The Germans were setting up manufacturing in various barns and apparently the one that was bombed was suspected of being a manufacturing site.

Eventually we ran totally out of food, even the guards had no food. We were kept on a remote farm for several days with only hot water to drink. I spent the night dreaming of steaks and all sorts of good food.

We finally got some food and moved on. By early April we stopped near a stream to rest for a day. The day was fairly warm and we took the opportunity to go swimming and clean up a little. This was the first chance we had to bathe and shave since February 6 when we marched out of TYCHOWO.

By mid April we were approaching the Elbe River. The allies were moving toward the Elbe from the west and the Russians were approaching Berlin from the east. We had no idea what was going to happen.

We were moving toward the Elbe River somewhere northwest of Berlin but miles south of Hamburg.

For the last two to three weeks, shortly after we crossed the Oder River, we saw streams of bombers overhead and many fighter planes roaming the skies in lone sorties looking for targets of opportunity. Anything larger than a bicycle that moved was fair game, including a horse and buggy of which there were many in Germany.

This is the second of a two-part story called, "D-Day And Beyond," written by Herbert G. Cooper, radio operator on the Rip Rohrer crew of the 601st Squadron. The crew was shot down over Berlin on June 21, 1944. All 10 members of the lead crew bailed out and survived the war in prisoner of war camps.

In the first installment (July, 2003) Cooper described the flak encounter that crippled his B-17, his capture, and life in a German PW camp. At Christmas time, he recalls, he and the others were let out "to celebrate Christmas far from loved ones and the country we had sworn to protect."

Cooper returned home to pursue a career as a electronic systems engineer. He lives in Indian Trail, NC.

It was almost impossible for the Germans to move anything in the daytime. The roads were littered with damaged trucks and railroad sidings were loaded with shell riddled and burned out cars.

Most fighters would fly over us and give recognition by waggling their wings. Unfortunately, a group of British flyers were not recognized, probably because their uniforms were blue, not khaki, and were strafed by fighters, killing many.

We finally crossed the Elbe River and came into a very dilapidated P.O.W. camp where the Germans held prisoners such as Russian and Gurkha fighters from India, etc. They had set up some tents outside the fence here and we were permitted into a certain area where some old deserted barracks had some showers.

The weather was getting warm and we were getting louse infected. They sprayed us with some louse powder and I had some spare clothes that I put on after showering and threw the louse infected ones away.

This place was terrible. Across the fence, by some storage building, we could see a stack of wooden coffins and each

PRISONERS OF WAR

The 398th Bomb Group, during its World War II combat tour at Nuthampstead, England in 1944-45, saw 288 members become prisoners of war. The Ira O'Neal crew of the 600th Squadron was the first to be shot down (May 19, 1944, Berlin) with the loss of eight of its 10 crew members. Howard Baer and George Graham became the first of the group's POW's. Harry Mazer and William O'Malley of the 602 Allen Ferguson crew were the last, coming on the final mission of the war—April 25, 1945, to Pilsen, Czechoslovakia. The following is a compilation of all 288 POW's, not in alphabetical order, but according to the date shot down. This was researched and prepared by Historian Lee Ann Bradley.

Busy Girl

LEE ANNE BRADLEY doubles as data coordinator and historian for the 398th. She is the one who compiled the prisoner of war statistics as seen on pages 5 and 6. She is seen here beside the 398th Memorial at the Mighty Eighth Heritage Museum in Savannah, Georgia. Lee Anne also has signed on for the "One Last Look" England Tour.

Busy Times Due On 2004 Tour:

Many Ceremonies Due In France, England

and other "historical" sites in and around Station 131.

Many activities are planned by the American and French governments during the weeks surrounding D-Day. The 398th will be a part as arranged by Destination Europe and guide Pär Nilhammer. The latter has been a most popular tour leader on previous visits to Europe. He is markedly skilled in European history, not only in English, but in several other languages (including Swedish).

As in past tours, our Friends of the 398th will sponsor special ceremonies at the memorial at Nuthampstead, and also at St. George's Church in Anstey, where the names of all 398th men killed in action are displayed in a magnificent stained glass window.

At least two members have indicated they will bring the flag of their deceased spouse or father to be raised on the "tall pole" near the location of the old operations tower.

The 2004 Tour carries a price of $2945 for the full tour of 13 days or $1395 for the seven-day England Only segment. These are LAND ONLY prices, and do not include air fare from the several US cities that service London.

BULLETIN--Tour participants are urged to send in their deposits as soon as possible to be assured of scarce hotel space in France. Contact Barbara Fish "soonest." THE ITINERARY

398th Will Support "Voices"

The 398th Bomb Group, already a major contributor to the EAA and the B-17, "Aluminum Overcast", has once again been called on to help a worthy project.

This time to assist in the underwriting of their newest and most ambitious project called, "Timeless Voices of Aviation."

Executive vice president Greg Anderson, who introduced the program at the Covington reunion and learned that 27 398th members had already contributed their "Voices," appealed to president Wally Blackwell for a groupwide appeal for funds.

Blackwell and the 398th Board endorsed the request and set a fund-raising goal of $10,000. This will include a 398th endorsement accompanied by a formal request by the EAA directed to the entire 398th membership.

"Thanks to guys like you," said Anderson, "we have freedoms like no other place else in the world. Rest assured, the EAA will work hard to preserve what you won for us over Europe."

Members are urged to send their contributions to "398th Bomb Group/Timeless Voices", c/o Marilyn Gibb-Rice, Fountain, CO 80817-0834. Marilyn is the 398th Bomb Group Association treasurer.

How It Was Back In '43:

'Psychomotive' Test Tough On Cadets

BY JACK CONWAY
Tail Gunner Beatty Crew, 600th Squadron

If a guy can't remember the names of the three people he played golf with the week before, how can he be expected to recall Army Air Force Cadet tests he took 60 years ago? I'll try.

I took my basic training and the "psychomotive" tests at Keesler Field, Biloxi, Mississippi in 1943. I passed the tests and was sent to Centenary College, Shreveport, Louisiana for cadet training.

While enroute to pre-flight in Texas, all of us "Volunteer Flight Trainees" were summarily washed out and I opted for gunnery school.

Thinking back on those "psychomotive" tests while still in the Cadet program, I recall five different tests—

1—It looked like an old phonograph record player with a metal record with a brass coin about the size of a dime adhered to the record. The brass coin moved erratically on the record. We were given a hinged stylus with a handle that had a wire connected to a timer box. We were to keep the stylus on the coin as long as possible and the time was recorded.

2—This had to do with keeping a stylus on a strip of brass. The control of the stylus was by two, turn-crank knobs, one on each side. The right hand knob had a left-hand thread and the left-hand knob had a right-hand thread. This was mind-boggling at the time.

3—This had to do with a strip of metal three feet long and three inches wide. It had a 3/16" hole drilled in the center and we were given a 1/16" stylus which we were to insert into the 3/16" hole. We were given head phones and told to keep the stylus from touching the metal strip as we held it in the hole. The stylus was connected to a timer box and our head phones. If we allowed the stylus to touch the metal our earphones came alive with machine gun fire, bombs exploding, people screaming and grenades going off. It was scary.

4—This was a model plane with a twofoot wing span and a cockpit sitting on a ball joint. The slightest movement would tip it to one side or the other and we had to bring it back to balance using the rudder controls and joystick. Your time of balance was recorded, and the instructor kept you busy by coming by and kicking it off balance. Nice guy.

5—This was another wooden plane model with the addition of a twin row of lights on a arc of wood for rudder control plus a second vertical row of lights for stick control. When the instructor lit a light you had to immediately light a matching light with either the rudder or stick control. Some fun!

Passed Testing; Still Shot Down

The accompanying article by Jack Conway was in response to a recent FLAK NEWS request for stories relating to Army Air Force Cadet testing and experiences.

(See July, 2003 story by Sir Roger duBoulay).

Conway was the tail gunner on the Hubert Beatty 600 Squadron Fortress that was shot down by an ME 262 on a mission to Stendal on February 22, 1945.

The German jet was then shot down by P-51 escort fighters.

Pilot Beatty, co-pilot James Honaker and navigator James Luna were killed in the attack. Surviving in PW camps were Conway; engineer Lawrence Moore; radioman James Godsey; and gunners Alva Freeman and Bernard Bagley.

Togglier Urie Zook also survived, but was later killed in a PW camp by "friendly fire" from American fighters on a strafing attack. Conway lives at Coconut Creek, FL 33066.

Mero Had Good View of Attack

I had a good view of the ME 262 attack that took out the Beatty crew on February 22, 1945. Our 600th was the High Squadron, led by Bill McLaughlin and Ted Johnston.

I was flying co-pilot with Harry Shuptrine on the wing of leader Don Grinter with Beatty on the port wing. Bill Evans was in the slot.

Shortly before the IP this ME-262 broke out of the clouds, made one pass and knocked out Beatty with cannon shells. The 262 pulled up and away, but quickly three P-51's got on his tail and took him out.

Beatty went into a flat spin with one engine on fire. I saw two parachutes be-fore the plane burst into flame and ex-ploded into small pieces. I was amazed to learn that five had gotten out.

Their co-pilot, Jim Honaker, was in my Nissen hut and we had become good friends. It was not a good day.

Warbird Crash Takes Two Lives

Two veteran airline pilots were killed when the Heinkel He-111 they were flying crashed while attempting to land at Cheyenne, Wyoming last July 10, 2003.

The Heinel belonged to the Contemporary Air Force's Arizona Wing of Mesa, Arizona. It was a stable mate of their B-17, Sentimental Journey, and other Warbirds.

Losing their lives in the crash were Neil Stamp, a Boeing 767 captain flying for U.S. Airways and Steve Bates, an A-320 Airbus captain flying for American West Airlines.

The CAF Warbird had been a feature with the Arizona Wing since restoration began in 1993. Its history includes being the presidential plane for Spanish dictator Franco. It was powered by two Rolls Royce Engines.

day it appeared to get smaller.

The allies were rapidly approaching from the west and in a few days we marched back eastward across the Elbe River again and headed back the way we had come but by a different route.

The Russian Army was laying siege to Berlin and after about three days we stopped for the night in a small farm village with a number of barns around the perimeter. During the last day or two they had been able to get a truckload of Red Cross parcels and we each had a complete box or more. I guess they wanted to feed us good before the Allies arrived.

That evening we prepared our food over a fire in the barnyard, we could hear big guns to the west and saw a squad of young, brown shirt troops head out with some bazookas (anti-tank weapons).

Now that we had plenty of food, we had a good dinner and went to sleep in the barn. Curt had acquired some potatoes from a German housewife and the next morning we started a fire and decided to have fried potatoes and Spam for breakfast. As we were about finished an armored column of the British Army with detachment of the American 9th Army came roaring down the road into town. Except for a scout car, they didn't even stop. When they saw us they began throwing out K rations from the tanks but kept on moving. Officers in the scout car were told about the troops we saw the night before going down the side road and they went down the road to investi-

We were left alone with the Germans, but by now the guards had surrendered their arms to us and we were in charge, virtually occupying the town. Everyone was celebrating, eating and just wandering around trying to find some way to get back to the main Allied lines which were still miles to the west at the Elbe River.

Some began knocking on doors and making German farmers get their horses and wagons or buggies out and start west with them. Curt and I looked around for a while and later in the afternoon two other fellows came up with two bicycles they had confiscated and asked if we wanted them as they had a ride on a wagon.

Suddenly we realized it was very late so we took the bikes and a rifle we had acquired from one of the guards. We decided to eat something and realized that everyone else was gone one way or another and the two of us were occupying the town alone. There were no Germans in sight and most homes had white sheets hanging out a window.

We decided it was too lake to start out on bicycles so we ate dinner, took the bicycles and went into the barn to sleep with the rifle close by.

We awoke early the next morning and decided it was time to leave this town as we could see no other airmen around. We ate breakfast, fastened our packs to the bicycles and headed down the road in the direction from which the armored column had come. I had slung the rifle on my shoulder so we felt somewhat secure as we rode along.

A few miles down the road, we came to a farmhouse where we saw several of our former guards trying to start a charcoal burning truck. Since we were armed and they were not, we decided that we might confiscate the truck and discard the bikes

As we rode into the driveway, the Germans all backed away from the truck and we looked it over. The charcoal burner had a fire box on the side which burned the charcoal and the gas generated was fed through a condensing system to the engine much like burning butane. We felt it too complicated to light and start without understanding the controls so we let them have it and rode on.

We saw another car in a barnyard but it was obviously inoperable. Finally we stopped for lunch, not knowing how far we had to go to the Allied lines. After eating, we continued down the road without further incident. I suppose anyone who saw us recognized our uniforms and saw we were armed.

Most Germans were afraid of the Russians and wanted the Allies to get there first. One guard told us, just before we were released, that he wanted no Ruskies; want Americans, he said.

We finally came to the town of Lauenburg in late afternoon. Here there were both British and American.

Long lines of German soldiers were coming down the road from the west. Here they were searched and generally told to go home; although the war was not yet over. There were too many to hold.

Also, as far as you could see down the road was a long line of German supply trucks loaded with supplies for the front but now in Allied hands.

We came up a small hill where Germans were coming in and looked around for a little while. Curt then suggested I watch the bicycles while he scouted around a little.

In a little while he came back with two Polish workers who wanted to get back to Poland and had acquired a German model A Ford van. He had convinced them that the Russians would not give them gas and traded the bicycles for the van

We picked up two other ex P.O.W.s and

It's Out West Time For Dues

This issue of FLAK NEWS represents the traditional "kickoff" for the coming year's Dues Campaign, or the opening 398th drive for the Year 2004.

Only one quarter of the members receive dues envelopes at a time, easing the accounting burden of Jim Haas, our Dues Manager.

Getting the honor of starting the 2004 drive will be those living in the Western regions of America –Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado, plus Alaska and Hawaii. This represents about 500 members.

Annual dues remain at $20 or $100 lifetime.

It is prudent to add that the payment of dues is a requirement for receiving FLAK NEWS, being a 398th officer, and voting at the annual meetings.

Dues or other contributions to the 398th Memorial Association can be sent at any time to Jim Haas, Perry, IA 50220-0163.

PS—The 398th Board, at the annual meeting in Covington, KY in September, authorized president Wally Blackwell to review the FLAK NEWS mailing list and delete those members who have not paid their annual dues the past two years.

"We have about 80 members who are in danger of being dropped," said Blackwell.

"D-Day And Beyond"

March From POW Camp Finally Ends

headed west down the cluttered road full of abandoned supply trucks and surrendered and disarmed German troops. After some time we came to Luneburgh on the Elbe River. Here we scouted around looking things over.

The bridge across the river had been blown but the Army Corps of Engineers had put a pontoon bridge in place. Many citizens were roaming around and packages of German military food supplies laying around on the ground. We were standing near a big round cheese when a lady came up and asked if she could have it. We were now going to be well fed so we told her to take it.

We discovered a parking lot of German military vehicles and found a sedan used for a staff or officers car. Looking up some American G.I.s, we asked for some gasoline. They gave us two five gallon cans and we filled the car and parked the truck.

Crossing the pontoon bridge we again headed west toward Belgium. For a number of miles, there were not many people or troops around. Late in the evening, after dark, we came to a German military post occupied by the British. Here we got a chance to shower, shave, were given clean British uniforms and fed.

The next day we loaded onto some troop transport trucks and headed further west stopping with a British group where they had a field kitchen set up and some tents erected. We stayed here two nights and then we were taken to a landing strip where we were picked up and flown to Belgium.

There were quite a few ex P.O.W.s waiting here and when the planes started coming in, they were old Lancaster four engine bombers. One lost a wheel which did not make us feel too comfortable. These planes were old and worn out. Much different then our B-17's. We were happy to arrive safely in Belgium.

From Brussels we went by train to one of the tent city reparation camps set up for P.O.W.s. This was near the Port of Le Harve. After spending several weeks here recuperating, drinking eggnog, and eating as much as we could we boarded a ship and sailed for home, arriving in New York on June 10. After receiving new uniforms and other equipment, I headed home for a 60 day furlough.

BRIEF-things

The gracious letter from Queen Elizabeth to the FLAK NEWS editor (Page 2) regarding the Sir Roger duBoulay story was like receiving a "paid in full" check for 17 years of editing. . . the next England trip (June 2004) will be even more eventful for the editor/tour leader \dots Tom Dougherty died last year in the US, having left a WWII daughter in England (as others had done); but this year he returned to England permanently when his wife, Dawne, spread his ashes around the 398th Memorial; his daughter also was there to witness the ceremony, as was Lesley Rolfe, another daughter sired by a 398th'er . . . the "Big Band of Ferdinand Havlic" played great music at the AIR STARS MEETING in Slany, Czech Republic, which was enjoyed by the six-person 398th tour group; but most of the other "music" broadcast on the Czech radio stations was absolutely abominable . . . the Urie Zook of the Beatty crew who was killed by "friendly fire" from American fighters (Page 8) had come to the 398th after an extended tour in B-25's in North Africa...radioman Roy Poston of Florissant, MO (Marshall Payne crew, 602) received quite a "message" on the Fourth of July when his friends at Pirrone's Restaurant bought him a ride on the Aluminum Overcast at the Spirit of St. Louis Airport . . . tour experts Barbara Fish and her hubby, Rick, are also boaters and last July they were "convoyed" through the Washington's San Juan Islands by killer whales and dolphins . . . with the passing of the Collings Foundation's Carl Clark, there are now no more FAArated WWII pilots still flying the Fortresses, our Hal Weekley retired from the Aluminum Overcast cockpit last year . . . you folks with E-mail should remember to send your addresses (and corrections) . . . in his book, FLYING BLIND, the then young captain Buddy Wagner tells of receiv-ing an order from Col. Hunter followed by the words, "this is not a suggestion"; Wagner managed to elude enough flight sur-geon exams to hide his poor vision, hence the title of his book, written especially for his family and friends . . . it took many hands to nail down the "right" hotel for the 2004 reunion in the DC area, but all agree that the Fairview Park Marriott in Falls Church, VA will be a perfect site . . . we'll see a fully restored B- 29 Enola Gay at the Udvar-Hazy Center next year, and not as an "excuse me" pacifist, piecemeal exhibit that irritated most vet-erans ... Richard Holub, the B-17 pilot who made the famous "rocket assist" takeoff at Station 131, discovered recently that one of the six rockets on one side never fired (but he still managed to take off from the barley field in eight seconds) . . . Laurence Gonzales, the journalist son of Federico Gonzales, has a new book out, DEEP SURVIVAL, that includes the story of his dad's crash survival at Neuss . . . Gil Geddes, son of the 602 gunner Gordon Geddes, is Special Events manager for the Frontiers of Flight Museum at Love Field, Dallas ... Ham Mero looked at the POW exhibit at the Wright-Patterson Museum and noticed a pilot's wings made from a tin can; the sign said-"Made By Parke Wright", who had been shot down on his sec-ond mission when his co-pilot, Mero, was flying with another crew... Keith Anderson's reunion presentation on the St.Lo missions gave many their first definitive explanation on the part played by the 398th . . . a nice little camera was left in the Memory Room; call the FLAK NEWS editor . . . crew chief Warren Currie invited the 398th to reunion in his Illinois hometown in 2010 because that year he will celebrate his 100th birthday! . . . president Blackwell was pleased that Queen Elizabeth received a copy of FLAK NEWS, but denies that she will be sent a Dues notice . . . Bill Martin of the 602nd was the lead bombardier on the St. Lo missions and he agrees that the 398th did a great job both days . . . wonder what the "jet age" Air Force Cadets thought when a B-17 (Sentimental Journey) did a fly past over their football stadium at Colorado Springs? . . . the Heinkel-I11 that crashed with the loss of two lives last summer was the last of its type still flying.
